The process of evaluating a charter school by an applicant through the life cycle of the school (below), the Board points at which schools that continue to meet the Board's expectations by reducing submission requirements and making it simpler for them to serve more students through their quality programs. Additionally, the State has developed an A-F Letter Grade System that evaluates all public charter and district schools (see "Arizona's A-F Letter Grade System" below).

Board's Performance

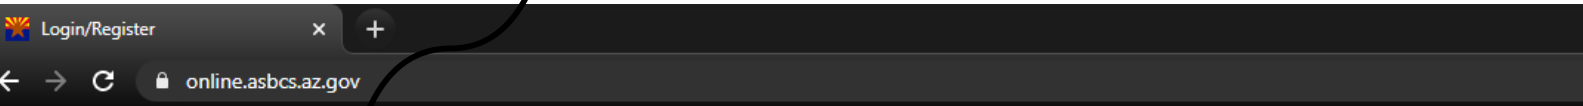

State law requires the Board to evaluate the charter holder's performance. The term "charter holder" refers to the entity that has entered into a charter contract with the Board to operate one or more charter schools. The Board's Performance Framework includes an academic performance component ("academic framework"), a financial performance component ("financial framework") and an operational performance component ("operational framework"). More information about each component may be found below.

Academic Framework Through its academic framework, the Board communicates its expectations for ensuring that all charter
